CAMP/LODGE DETAILS

Siana Springs

Siana Springs lies at the base of the Ngama hills outside the eastern border of the Masai Mara National Reserve. The camp, fringed by wetlands and surrounded by giant fig and ghostly Fever Trees, is named for the perennial springs that bubble around the camp - a lush oasis in a dry landscape. Siana Springs is one of Africa's most progressive ecological partnerships, twinning Conservation Corporation Africa's vision for the continent with the economic future of the Maasai people's nomadic existence. The Maasai share in the venture. Siana Springs is ideal for honeymoons, special occasions, tour groups, incentives and leisure groups.

Enormous trees provide ample shade for the three wings of this exclusive camp. A tranquil atmosphere pervades the camp and total privacy is ensured at Palm Wing (nine tents), Bamboo Wing (19 tents) and Acacia Wing (ten tents). All tents are spacious and have en suite bathroom, soft lighting, zip-up front entrances and windows. Tents are tucked amongst a small forest of indigenous trees and open onto trimmed lawns in a pristine setting. An elegant indoor lounge/bar area offers refreshments, especially welcome at the end of a warm day. You may relax and socialize on the large patio area warmed by a fireplace. The swimming pool is a cool retreat - poolside dinners and parties are often hosted here. The reception can be found at the entrance to the camp near our curio shop, which is filled with African treasures.

Siana Springs boasts two observation hides with spectacular views of the Mara hills and plains.
